

The Hessian Merit Awards for Excellence in Teaching by a FULL-TIME Instructor

Objectives

The University of Prince Edward Island's Hessian Merit Awards for Excellence in Teaching honour faculty members who are recognized as possessing outstanding competence in teaching. These awards publicly acknowledge individuals whose work has contributed to instructional excellence at UPEI.

The UPEI Hessian Merit Awards for Excellence in Teaching are adjudicated by the Hessian Merit Awards for Excellence in Teaching Committee, whose members are appointed by the Faculty Association Executive. The Committee comprises members from different academic areas of the university. Up to three awards for full-time faculty may be granted each academic year (for a total of up to four full-time and sessional Hessian Awards), although the Committee may decide not to grant an award in any particular year.

Eligibility

1. Nominees must be full-time faculty at UPEI who are teaching (i.e., not on sabbatical) during the semester in which they are nominated.
2. Nominees must have taught at least nine credit hours at UPEI before the term in which they are nominated.
3. Nominees must not have received a Hessian Merit Award for Excellence in Teaching within the past five years.

Criteria

Nominees for the award should:

- exhibit a comprehensive knowledge of the subject
- be habitually well prepared for teaching sessions
- have energy and enthusiasm for the subject and the capacity to arouse students' interest in it
- encourage student participation in the teaching and learning process
- set a high standard and motivate students to attain that standard
- communicate effectively at levels appropriate to students' capacity
- emphasize understanding of the subject over mere memorization (as appropriate) in evaluating student performance
- be accessible to students outside the classroom
- demonstrate excellence in teaching, including the use of innovative teaching techniques
